

In writing on the subject of the late proposed Peace negotiations, Mr. Horace Greeley says: "The telegraphic stories concerning Peace conference at Niagara Falls have a slender foundation in fact, but most of the details are very wide of the truth. The Editor of this paper has taken part in and been privy to no further or other negotiations than were fully authorized, and more than authorized; but these related solely to bringing the antagonists face to face in amicable rather than belligerent attitude, with a view to the initiation of an earnest effort for Peace, to be prosecuted at Washington. The movement has had no immediate success. More than this he does not as yet feel at liberty to state, though he soon may be. All that he can now add in his general inference that the pacification of our country is neither so difficult nor so distant as seems to be generally supposed." The Northern press seem to think that the whole matter has ended in nothing.

Advices from the White River report that the Confederates have disappeared from its banks, and navigation is uninterrupted.

A dispatch from Washington says: "Two hundred and fifty cases were tried before the courts martial recently in session in Alexandria under the direction of Gen. J. P. Slough, Military Governor. About sixty of the culprits were sent to Fort Lafayette. It is the intention of the General to reassemble the courts at an early day, they having been temporarily dissolved during the recent invasion to allow the officers comprising them to go into the field."

Capt. Winslow writes to the U. S. Navy Department that the "Yeddo," supposed to be the vessel assigned to succeed the Alabama, which sailed from Bordeaux, is reported to have passed into Prussian hands and has entered the Weser."

The Detroit Tribune says that quite a number of Confederate agents are now recruiting in Canada. At Windsor, Major St. Lawrence obtained over fifty recruits in a few days, chiefly from among Confederate soldiers who have escaped from Federal prisons.
